In December 2013 the Minister of Finance of Georgia signed Order No. 423 that regulates transfer pricing issues in international controlled transactions. If an enterprise carries out a financial or commercial operation with a related enterprise or a company registered in an offshore/low tax jurisdiction, each such enterprise shall determine its taxable profit amount according to the arm's length principle. The tax authorities have the right to check the reasonability of taxable profit and require Transfer Pricing documentation from the entity.

If your company is/will be engaged in international controlled transactions this seminar is for you.

Specialists from Deloitte's Global Transfer Pricing team will discuss the requirements as well as current industry and local market practices.
